In "Not I," she captures the bittersweet ache of unrequited love with lines like:

““You are the one I cannot have,
A shadow that haunts my dreams,
A ghost in the halls of my memory.””

Through the evocative use of imagery, Karasick transports us into the heart of a longing that is both agonizing and beautiful.

Exploring the Depths of Emotion

"This Poem" is not merely a collection of words; it is a profound exploration of the human condition. Karasick delves into the depths of emotion, navigating the tumultuous waters of love, loss, longing, and resilience.

In "The Girl Who Loved Whales," she paints a haunting portrait of a woman whose sorrow threatens to drown her:

““She is a girl who loved whales,
And the sea took them away.””

With each line, Karasick illuminates the weight of grief and the search for solace in the face of adversity.

Unveiling the Enigmas of Existence

Beyond the personal realm, Karasick also grapples with the enigmatic nature of existence. In "The Question," she ponders the age-old mystery of our place in the cosmos:

“We are but dust in the wind,
A breath in the vast void,
Yet we seek answers to questions
That may never be known.”

Through her introspective verses, she invites readers to question their own beliefs and to contemplate the unfathomable tapestry of life.

A Journey of Self-Discovery

"This Poem" is not just a book of poetry; it is an invitation to embark on a journey of self-discovery. Karasick's words offer a mirror through which we can examine our own complexities, unravel our inner selves, and find solace in the shared human experience.

As you turn the pages of this captivating collection, you will not only be captivated by the beauty of Karasick's language but also transformed by the profound insights and emotions that she evokes. "This Poem" is a testament to the power of words to uplift, inspire, and heal.
